MANAGEMENT REPORT OF FUND PERFORMANCE - REVISED

For the year ended December 31, 2018

Management Discussion of Fund Performance

The management discussion of fund performance for RP Strategic Income Plus Fund (the "Fund") represents the view of RP Investment Advisors LP (the "Manager") of the significant factors and developments affecting the Fund's performance and outlook for the period from January 01, 2018 to December 31, 2018 (the "reporting period").

Investment Objective and Strategies

The primary objective of the Fund is to produce stable risk-adjusted absolute returns. The Fund intends to achieve its investment objective by investing primarily in investment-grade fixed income instruments, predominantly on a long basis, but with the ability to use cash-covered short positions to hedge interest rate risk.

Risk

The risks associated with investing in the Fund remain as discussed in the Prospectus. The Fund is suitable for medium to long-term investors seeking income returns with low risk. The major risks for the fund are credit risk and interest rate risk. Additional details of the risks associated with investing in the Fund is available in the Prospectus.

During the reporting period the Fund's Risk Rating was lowered from "Low to Medium" to "Low". This change was effective January 12, 2018, as the Fund adopted a new Risk Rating calculation methodology in line with new regulatory requirements under National Instrument 81-102. Due to the fact that the Fund does not have a 10 year performance record, a reference index is used to calculate a portion of the standard deviation of return on which the risk rating is based. The reference index is comprised of 40% FTSE TMX Canada All Corporate Bond Index, 50% Bloomberg Barclays US Corporate Bond Index (CAD hedged), and 10% Bloomberg Barclays US Corporate High Yield Index.

For the period ended December 31, 2018 there were no material changes affecting the overall level of risk associated with investment in the Fund.

Results of Operations

The Fund had a net asset value of $1.321 billion at the end of the reporting period, with a loss of approximately $19.5 million resulting from performance.

Class F units of the Fund returned -1.97% for the reporting period. The performance of the other classes of the Fund are substantially similar, save for differences in fees and expenses. Refer to the "Past Performance" section for performance information of each class, as applicable. No unusual trends in sales, redemptions or changes to the components of revenue and expenses were identified during the reporting period.

In 2018, credit markets repriced materially as North American central banks remained on a tightening course, with the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") hiking interest rates four times and the Bank of Canada hiking three times throughout the year. In the U.S., there was an increasing focus on reducing forward guidance for the purpose of re-introducing market volatility as rates reached relatively normal levels. Alongside these central bank developments, increasing global trade tensions and populist politics sparked worries that left risk markets unsteady through much of the year. These developments played out against the backdrop of credit valuations near historic highs at the beginning of the year.

MANAGEMENT REPORT OF FUND PERFORMANCE - REVISED

December 31, 2018

During the reporting period, core conviction European bank exposures dragged on Fund performance. In particular Deutsche Bank AG and Santander UK PLC. Despite macro developments in Europe, we continued to view these banks as being exceptionally well capitalized while offering very good value relative to global comparable. Exposures to integrated Canadian energy names such as Enbridge Inc. and Cenovus Energy Inc. were among the best performers in the Fund.

Recent Developments

The combination of gradually rising rates, global tensions and technical market factors produced a gradual, but steady, repricing of corporate credit risk throughout 2018. This repricing accelerated markedly in October as the Fed signaled a more aggressive than anticipated tightening path, given the strength of the U.S. economy. In late December, however, the Fed began to turn more cautious. With a dearth of market liquidity heading into year-end, the repricing of corporate credit became more pronounced bringing credit valuations in line with longer term measures of fair value. We viewed these developments as materially improving the risk/reward proposition of corporate credit heading into 2019.

Four new classes of the Fund were launched during the reporting period. Effective January 12, 2018, the Fund commenced offering Class M units. Effective February 5, 2018, the Fund commenced offering Class A-USD, Class F-USD and Class M-USD units. At December 31, 2018 no units of Class M-USD have been sold since the inception of this class. The Fund also changed its Risk Rating during the reporting period. The rating was lowered from “Low to Medium” to “Low”. Additional information pertaining to the nature of this change is presented in the Risk section of this report.

During the reporting period the Fund did not undergo material changes pertaining to its investment objective, asset mix, accounting policies or composition of its Independent Review Committee. The Fund has gradually increased its interest rate sensitivity from an approximate average of 2.5 years to around 4 years, as we continued to enter the latter stages of the current economic cycle with a view that a higher rate sensitivity was prudent for the purposes of creating a portfolio ballast. Taken together, we recognize that risks remain but feel relatively confident that the opportunity ahead in 2019 is much better than was the case in 2018. We believe that there remains further innings in the current economic cycle and that opportunities to extract value are more abundant than they were last year. As such we remain focused on higher quality credit exposure and intend to position the Fund to generate a stable risk-adjusted absolute return. Should the cycle turn, we aim to remain well positioned to preserve capital in line with the Fund’s investment objective.

Related Party Transactions

- (2) Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding broker commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period. The Manager has temporarily absorbed or rebated a portion of the operating expenses of the Fund. The Manager can cease such absorptions or rebates at any time.
- (3) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.
- (4) The Fund's portfolio turnover ratio indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio manager manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover ratio of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period. The higher a Fund's portfolio turnover ratio in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high portfolio turnover rate and the performance of the Fund.
